

THE EARTH IS OUR HOME

The earth has existed for 4.5 billion years. She provided the perfect home for the human race to develop and thrive. Our planet is like a mother for all living people, but we are not protecting her enough. We pollute her a lot with all the factories and home chimneys that are poisoning the air, the car carburant and all the waste that is thrown to the ground... We are not realizing that by polluting her we are triggering our own death, too, because all that pollution ends up in our food and in the water we drink. People are so ungrateful for all that the Earth gives them, and they think that because they live on this planet it becomes theirs and they can do whatever they want with it. Everybody can have a better life if the environment is cleaner, because our food and drink will be less polluted. Also, by better caring for the earth we would leave more for the next generation by keeping more species of flora and fauna alive.

Now that we have made the mistake, we can only try to fix it. So in the future we can try not to use plastics anymore (maybe by replacing them with biodegradable materials), we can use electric cars instead of traditional cars, start to recycle more... Many people are trying to find a solution to the problem of the earth's pollution, but for now it is difficult because we cannot just stop all the factories and the cars. People are not ready for this yet. We have begun to take the first step to save the Earth by recycling more and using new technologies, but there is still much to do. People should use public transportations instead of their cars. We can also raise awareness in our communities and extend initiative to better the public environment. There are many things that we can do to reduce, reuse and recycle. Humans have to respect Mother Nature like she respects us. And instead of being ungrateful, we have say thank you for what this planet has given us and apologize for what we have done to her. It is never too late to repair our mistakes. Perhaps the Earth is not going to be unspoilt like before, but improvement is better than nothing!
